PREFACE

There are some things which can be said better in a Preface than in the body of the work itself. Some personal explanations can be made which would be out of place anywhere else. Suggestions are made here to enable one to understand the purpose of the endeavor.

Many of you may look only for your own name or of those in whom you are interested to see where you appear in this genealogy. But, it is the compiler's wish that all who have any Rose blood in their veins, may at least read the Introduction, and The Early History and Genealogy in America. In so doing you will, all the better, appreciate your early ancestry; you will see what your forebearers had to endure, the struggles they met bravely, and how their ambitions as pioneers were realized.

It should be known to all that the compiler of this History and Genealogy whose name appears at the end of this preface was not the first to collect material suitable for the Rose history. It is to the late Judge James Edward Rose of Auburn, Indiana that we must give the first credit. Some forty years ago he gave at a Rose reunion a report of his research into the history of the Rose family in the Old World, of their trials and tribulations there; and of our first Rose ancestor here in the New World, and his descendants in what is now known as the Panhandle of West Virginia, which includes Berkeley County where he located.

In addition to what Judge Rose has given us, the compiler gives for a background, the religious and economic conditions in France during those years of misery and hardship through which the Roses as French Huguenots had to pass. The compiler also takes credit for much time given in gathering data; he has visited many libraries, court houses, cemeteries and has made many personal calls; and besides has carried on an extensive correspondence with members of the Rose and allied families, scattered far and wide.

Acknowledgement is made for aid given by many who were called upon for data that enters into this compilation. Space forbids giving their names with due credit for what they so kindly did to make this matter possible.

In the face of all that has been done, there will be mistakes and omissions. Of the latter we know there will be many, for some people we could not contact; and there were others who paid no attention to our request for information concerning their immediate family. In the course of time we may secure some data about these lost ones; and our attention will be called to errors found. When sufficient data warrants, a revised or additional sheet can be made for your loose-leaf binder.

Residence and occupation have been omitted in this work, except in instances where one has or had a profession; in that case his title or degree is given. The Roses and allied families in the pioneer days were given to agriculture, but later, many of them have become connected with all lines of industry--merchants, manufacturers, bankers, and the professions.

Our hope is that this history of our ancestors may lead us to revere their memory; and that we may have their good characteristics, with added virtues. To our loved ones who have passed on, we dedicate this work.

Warren, Ohio.

Introduction

Until the 17th century the Roses lived in France; and during that troublesome period from 1550 to 1685, covering 135 years, the Rose history is closely connected with that of France. They were Huguenots, which was a religious political party and opposed by the Catholics.

In 1559 Francis II, a youth of sixteen years, succeeded to the French throne. The year before he had married Mary, Queen of Scots; and being of feeble intellect, he was ruled by his fascinating queen, who had been educated a Catholic, and taught to despise the Protestants or Huguenots, as they were called in France.

The persecution of these Huguenots of the previous reign of Henry II was now employed more vigorously under that of Francis II; but happily it lasted only eighteen months when the king died, (1560).

Beginning with the next reign, that of Charles IX, (1560-1572) the States General, the law making body, proclaimed entire freedom of religion, which was confirmed in a later reign by the royal Edict of Nantes, the same being signed on April 13, 1598 by Henry IV, (1589-1610).

We must not assume that all was peace, for there was constant clashing between the Catholics and the Huguenots, in spite of the Edict of Nantes. The Catholics did not consider the Huguenots on the same footing in the community--they were tolerated, but not absolutely equal in rights.

Matters kept up in this fashion until the reign of Louis XIV, known in history as Louis the Great, (1643-1715); and it was during his reign that the crucial moment came which decided the fate of thousands and thousands of the Huguenots, among whom were the Roses.

In 1683, the queen died, and Louis afterward married secretly Madam de Maintenon ('Mahn-ta-nong') who obtained a singular influence over him. It was by her advice that he revoked the Edict of Nantes on October 18, 1685, which was afterward called the greatest mistake of his reign. This was an element in the decline of France.

After this revocation he ordered all Huguenot forms of worship to cease, and their chapels and temples to be destroyed; and they were persecuted beyond all tolerance, and even killed.

Then came the greatest flight (1685) from this state of affairs. Those Huguenots who fled were among the middle and upper classes of mechanics and traders. This loss to France was great. It never can be known, with anything approaching accuracy, how many persons fled. Vauban the historian, writing a few years after said, "France had lost a hundred thousand inhabitants, sixty millions of money, nine thousand sailors, twelve thousand tried soldiers, six hundred officers, and its most flourishing manufacturers."

History further states that a whole district of London was peopled by these Huguenots who transported their silk factories from France; also many found a home in northern Germany, carrying thither their arts, their thrift and their industry.

At the time of the great flight from France which was about 1685, several families by the name of Rose fled to Scotland; and on the way they were shipwrecked on the island of Islay, off the coast of Scotland, but they finally reached the mainland safely. Some thirty years later, about 1715, when emigration to the Western Hemisphere became popular, seven Rose brothers made the voyage to the new world to carve out their fortunes.

It may be that these Rose brothers were born in Scotland during this short period of some thirty years, from their entry on the British Isles; and it could be possible that Scotch blood was acquired through one marriage--this is an open question; however, our first ancestor in America seems to have been unmarried when he came here, as we shall mention later.

Historians have found that one of these Rose brothers settled in New York City; another one came on to Philadelphia, and there much of the land in that big city was owned by him--this fact has been traced through the records of deeds. One of these brothers had the name of Simon Rose; and another that of Robert Rose, (our line) who in company with the other four traveled on and settled in Berkeley County, Virginia, now West Virginia.

It is interesting to relate that the early settlers to Virginia were mostly young unmarried men. When it was learned back in Great Britain, that these planters had decided to make America their permanent home, entire shiploads of girls came over to become the wives of these settlers. The transportation of each girl had to be paid for by the young man who picked her for his wife.

The Barter System was the mode of exchange in those days, and for long after. Tobacco being the chief commodity of the farms, made it the principal medium of exchange.

Here is an anecdote, handed down from generation to generation which we believe is true, that our ancestral grandmother was one of these girls. Tradition has it that this Robert Rose picked out a 96 pound girl, for whose transportation he had to give as many pounds of tobacco; hence, we might call our first American grandmother the bartered bride--the name being suggested by the Bohemian Comic Opera bearing that title, "The Bartered Bride."

Summers Genealogical and Family History of Eastern Ohio, page 510, gives the account, that Rose took along 125 pounds of tobacco to pay his bride's voyage, and when he found she weighed 150 pounds, he had to return home for the other 25 pounds. While these two stories differ in detail, they remain true in fact, which goes to prove that she must have been a bartered bride.

This Robert Rose, one of the seven brothers and son of one of the Roses who fled from France was, without doubt, born in Scotland in the early 1690's and migrated to America about 1715; and soon after married the said bartered bride. This couple always resided in Berkeley County, Virginia, and was of the first generation of the Rose family in America.

The Early History and Genealogy in America

*(1) Robert Rose had three sons, (2) Robert Jr., Jesse, and David. This genealogy is concerned with the line of David who was born in Berkeley County, Va. in 1741, eleven years before the birth of George Washington. David had three sons and a daughter of whom we are acquainted with two, and know them as Jesse I and John, Sr., whose descendants we shall trace.

(3) Jesse Rose I was born in Berkeley County, Va. in 1760. He served some time, near the close, in the War of the Revolution. According to records in the Dept. of the Interior, Bureau of Pensions, Washington, D. C. in claim R-, File No. 9002 Rev. War, it states that this Jesse Rose was drafted in August, 1781; was at the capture of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown on Oct. 19, 1781; and assisted in guarding prisoners to Fort Frederick; and was honorably discharged the November following. It is noted in the Government files of his later residence in Ellsworth, Mahoning County, Ohio. His service in the Revolutionary War was as a Private in the 3d Virginia Regiment.

Soon after his War service, Jesse married Susan Smith, the daughter of a Wm. Smith. They had four sons and four daughters.

It was in the year 1802 that Jesse Rose I and his brother John, Sr. with their families came to the Ohio country which was now becoming settled. They entered the Western Reserve at Poland (near Youngstown) which was one of the gateways to this section.

To show the shrewdness and wise foresight of these two young men, we must cite a little local history:-At that time there was no Mahoning County. The northeast corner of the Ohio Territory, south to the 41st parallel was known as the New Connecticut, or the Western Reserve. Youngstown had been founded by John Young in 1797, and Warren was laid out by Moses Warren the next year. On July 10, 1800, Governor Arthur St. Clair of the Northwest Territory set up Trumbull County (named for Gov. Trumbull of Connecticut) which comprised the whole of the Reserve, and made Warren the Capital, or County Seat.

John Rose, Sr. settled for a while in Poland, but later moved to Mecca Township, and from there some of his descendants migrated to DeKalb County, Indiana. The late Judge James E. Rose of Auburn, Indiana was a grandson of this John Rose, Sr.

Jesse Rose I came on by horseback to Ellsworth Township where he purchased several tracts of land in and around what is now Rosemont. He placed the most of his children on these farms. The oldest son, David, lived with his parents on the home farm, later known as the Fogg farm, now owned by a Mr. Keck and located in Rosemont.

After the death of his wife Susan, the mother of all his children, Jesse married Rachel Parshall, their ages being 67 and 62 respectively. Trumbull County Court record has it that they were married October 27, 1827 by Henry Boyd, Justice of the Peace. Rachel's daughter, Sarah (Polly) Parshall was the wife of Jesse's son, David.

Jesse died at the age of 92 on his farm at Rosemont in Ellsworth Township in July 1852, and was buried in the Ellsworth cemetery.

No monument ever had been erected to his glorious memory until eighty-six years later when a great great grandson of his, the compiler of this history and genealogy, placed the matter before the War Department at Washington, with the result that a Government gravestone of Vermont marble was furnished and delivered, free; and it was placed at his grave on May 20, 1939.

John Rose, Sr.

John Rose, Sr., brother of Jesse Rose I (see pages 4 and 5) came to Poland about 1803, but moved to Mecca in 1813. Harriet Taylor Upton, in her history of Trumbull County says: "It is said that the Rose cabin was a very small affair, but was kept in such a scrupulous manner that it was remembered by the citizens for many years. The Roses were of Quaker descent."

* In a historical write up of Trumbull County, mention is made of the contribution this Rose family and their descendants gave to its development. It says: "Few families have impressed their business energies and civic activities more permanently upon Trumbull County than the Roses. They were God-fearing people. The Congregational Church at Mecca was founded through their efforts."

John Rose, Jr., oldest son of John, Sr., was born in Maryland before his parents came to the Ohio country. About 1815 or 1816, he married Rhoda Rose, his first cousin, daughter of Jesse I. They had three sons, and one daughter named Nancy Arvilla. When Nancy was seven years old, her mother died; and later her father married Sarah Coats, by whom he had two sons and one daughter.

One of these last sons was the late Judge James Edward Rose of Auburn, Indiana, whom we mentioned in our preface. A daughter of his gave to the compiler of this genealogy the following data:

"In 1836 they (John Rose, Jr.) sold their farm in Trumbull County, Ohio and entered 320 acres in Stafford Tp., DeKalb County, Indiana. Nancy Arvilla told her daughter Jennie that they were 31 days making the trip from Trumbull County, Ohio to DeKalb County, Indiana; three days crossing the Black Swamp; after traveling all day, at evening they could look back and see the place from which they had started in the morning. John Rose was a tall man with lovely blue eyes. Mrs. Sara Coats Rose was a pretty blue eyed woman; kind to every one. She showed no difference between her own and her husband's children by his first wife, Rhoda Rose."

This information was given me by Jennie Crooks Hoffman, daughter of Nancy Arvilla Rose, age 82 years.

Auburn, Indiana
August, 1935

Signed,
Mrs. Pauline Rose Beugnot

The charts which follow give all the information we now have concerning the descendants of John Rose, Sr.

The compiler would welcome any information that might lead to a more complete line-up of the Rose family.
